Software Licence and EULA Notice

Effective October 30, 2026 · Seller: Hypo Monitor, 41 Parr Blvd, Bolton, ON L7E 4E3, Canada · hypomonitor@hotmail.com

Hypomonitor sells physical portable monitors and related accessories. This notice explains how software and licence terms relate to those purchases; it is not a claim that Hypomonitor owns or licenses third-party monitor drivers.

1. Hardware purchases

A monitor purchase supplies the physical goods identified in the order. It is not a recurring software subscription or a paid digital-community membership. Access to a payment receipt or support material does not by itself create a recurring charge.

You may use the hardware for lawful personal or business purposes, subject to the product specifications, safe-use instructions and applicable law.

2. Drivers and other third-party software

A compatible driver may be required to use the monitor. Any third-party driver, firmware or software is governed by the actual licence of its copyright owner or provider, presented with the software or at its source.

Review those actual terms before installation or use. Rights to copy, modify or redistribute third-party software are determined by the relevant licence and applicable law. This notice does not relicense third-party code, claim ownership of it, or override an open-source licence.

3. Hypomonitor instructions and website materials

You may use legitimately supplied Hypomonitor instructions and support materials as needed to install and operate your purchased equipment. This permission does not transfer ownership of our original materials or authorize misrepresenting another party's brand or ownership.

Copyright exceptions and rights separately granted by law or another applicable licence remain available.

4. Compatibility, data and consumer rights

Check the compatibility information for the selected device, operating system, ports and driver before purchasing or installing software. Third-party software may have its own privacy information; that provider is responsible for explaining its own processing.

This notice does not replace the hardware warranty, money-back guarantee or applicable statutory consumer rights. The Terms of Service, Returns and Refunds Policy and Warranty page govern the relevant hardware commitments.
